Excerpt: .ever slid, The faith of some great mystery to rid. Twas thought Beligion, from the pressure freed, Would to a more exalted place succeed; But, like the mercury, relieved of weight, She only fell into a lower state. Where men denounce the faith of Rome we trace Her equal libellers in every case: As Protestants--so Arians abused; And Manicheans in like style accused. Eome was idolatrous in every schism: The Pope, in foul religious despotism, Was Anti-christ; and papal Rome, upon Her seven hills, was plainly Babylon. This bright idea did not rise with you: In previous heretics it nourished too, Showing a kindred mark in all the crew; Who, in each war they separately make, Thus from one armory their weapons take. Yet the Reformers movement was impressed With traits distinguishing it from the rest; For Schism selected then no favoured man, But...
