A succession of boys about my own age and younger, --noble fellows who have made their mark in the world since, --followed and extended the influence, till Harford became the educational center of northern Pennsylvania. The list of distinguished preachers, teachers, State senators and members of Congress, judges and governors educated here, in whole or in part, whom Miss Blackman has enumerated in her History of Susquehanna County, some of whom are here to-day to speak for themselves, would do credit to any institution. The annual exhibition of Franklin Academy, she adds, brought together several thousand spectators. The benefits of the institution were within the reach of those of humble means, owing to the accommodation for students to board themselves; and the best yeomanry. of the county were here constantly represented. We have but to inscribe the name of RICHARDSON to represent the honored instructors of many youths in Harford, of whom not a few have since been written on the roll of fame, --and better that of usefulness. History of Susquehanna County, pp. 184, 529. | Mr. Lyman Richardson had not a college education, and was not himself a thorough classical scholar. He was a self-educated and self-made man But this does not...
