What is the secret of that overwhelming depression that weighs upon one s being when in the presence of an old deserted house? It overpowers you. You may strive to laugh it down, but the echo of that laugh is a weird reproof and mockery; you may strive to reason it away, but it is not obedient to the intellect; it is not the slave of reason. Ye who were wont to laugh at the credulous fancy of the village crone, come with me to that old house in the shadows of the twilight, and see how quickly are the smiles of ridicule dispelled. I sought this ruin upon an autumn evening; I picked my way through its wilderness of weeds, following the path of some prowling tenant that had worn a beaten track to door and cellar way. I saw the yawning roof; I saw the yellow leaves of twenty years that had been whisked in at the gaping sashes, and had been whirled by the blustering wind into great piles in the damp corners. I looked out upon the high-grown weeds and mildewed lilacs that swayed against the window-sills. The drop of the squirrel s nut rattled on the rafters overhead, and every sheltered corner was festooned with heavy cobwebs laden with the dust of generations. I saw...
